I. INTRODUCTION

This is a report on the expenditure of government and voluntary funds for human services in Alameda County during fiscal year 1974-75. The report was prepared by the Bay Area Social Planning Council (BASPC) at the request of the Alameda County Human Services Council.

BACKGROUND

In 1975 the Alameda County Board of Supervisors established a Human Services Council to advise the Board on the planning and delivery of human services throughout the County. The Council is attempting to increase the level of information on services provided in the public and private sectors and to identify problem areas and gaps in services. On the basis of this information, the Council will make recommendations to the Board regarding ways to improve the human services delivery system in Alameda County.

In a letter dated August 15, 1975, Mr. George Bleth, Executive Director of the Council, requested BASPC to assist the Council with its information gathering function. Specifically, BASPC was asked to undertake a study which would provide the following information:

- a. Federal and State dollars allocated for human services by the Alameda County Board of Supervisors, with identification of mandated programs versus discretionary programs.
- b. Monies spent by cities within Alameda County to fund human services programs.
- c. Dollars spent on human services by quasi public-private bodies, such as the Criminal Justice Planning Board, ACTEB/ACAP, etc.

d. Programs funded by the United Way and other major private foundations within the County.

The request for the study was discussed between representatives of BASPC and the United Way of the Bay Area (UWBA) on September 10, 1975. The United Way agreed to underwrite the cost of the study as part of its ongoing effort to improve cooperation and coordination between the public and voluntary sectors. Thereafter, BASPC prepared a proposed plan for conducting the study. The plan was submitted to the Council's Director and to United Way staff on October 10, 1975, and was subsequently approved by both organizations. Work on the project was initiated on November 1, 1975.

SCOPE OF STUDY

The purpose of the BASPC study was to identify government and voluntary funds expended for human services in Alameda County during fiscal year 1974-75. For the purpose of this study, human services expenditures include funds allocated to service providers and payments to or on behalf of individuals. Sources of funds are limited to: governmental agencies, United Way of the Bay Area and foundations. Time and cost factors precluded the collection of information about funds from other sources, such as donations, fees, memberships, etc.

The basic data collected in the study consists of the dollar amounts expended by federal, state, county, city and special purpose government agencies, and by voluntary nonprofit agencies, including United Way of the Bay Area, United Way member agencies and independent voluntary agencies. To the extent that it was available, the following information was gathered for each expenditure identified: name, location and auspice of the operating agency; the agency's primary geographic service area and the place(s) (usually city) in which services were provided; type of service provided; original source of funds and agencies through which funds were transmitted to the operating agency; and (in the case of government funds) the statutory authority and grant program under which funds were allocated. In the case of payments made directly to individuals, an attempt was made to identify the name and purpose of the financial assistance program and the amount allocated to individuals in specific geographic areas. No attempt was made to identify funds received by specific operating agencies from (or on behalf of) financial assistance recipients.

The study includes expenditures for 25 specific human services categories; these categories are identified in Section III. By agreement with staff of the Human Services Council, expenditures for the following categories of services were not included in the study: law enforcement and judicial activities; education in the regular formal school system and adult education (except vocational training); educational loans, scholarships and fellowships; research; environmental and conservation services (such as garbage and sanitation, pollution control and recycling); industrial health and safety programs; recreation programs provided by public agencies; cultural activities; public libraries; consumer services; and planning and code enforcement activities of regional, county and municipal planning departments or agencies. Time and cost constraints were important factors which determined final decisions regarding categories to be included in the study.

With minor exceptions, all expenditures identified in this report were for services provided in Alameda County. Expenditures for services provided outside the County for County residents (e.g., care in State hospitals) generally have been excluded, even though such services may be supported with County funds. Expenditures for services provided outside the County for County residents have been included only when they could not be separated from expenditures for services provided in the County.

METHODOLOGY

The information in this report was obtained from a variety of government agencies at the federal, State, County, and local government levels, from United Way of the Bay Area, and from private foundations. Most of the data were obtained directly from staff of government and voluntary agencies or from documents and records made available to BASPC by the agencies. These documents included budgets, reports, records, audits, grant lists, and related materials.

Funds received by operating agencies or paid directly to individuals were traced back to their original sources. Information on expenditures of government funds was obtained primarily from original funding sources or from agencies which function as conduits for monies.

In obtaining information about foundation grants, 44 private foundations were identified as having made at least one grant to an agency in Alameda County during the last five years. All but four of the foundations identified are located in the San Francisco Bay Area. Information on grants made during fiscal year 1974-75 was solicited by letter from 41 of the foundations; information had already been obtained about grants made by the other three foundations. Responses were obtained from 31 of the 41 foundations solicited. The foundations from which information was obtained reported 219 grants to public and private agencies in Alameda County during fiscal year 1974-75. Of that total, 173 grants, made by 24 different foundations, were for activities included within the scope of the study.

LIMITATIONS OF THE DATA

The accuracy and completeness of the information contained in this report is constrained by difficulties encountered in obtaining the basic data. Considerable time and effort were spent in attempting to trace government funds back to the original source and to identify the operating agencies which ultimately received funds to provide direct services. In many cases, the government personnel contacted could not provide BASPC with information on the original source of funds, the statutory authority or grant program under which specific funds were allocated, or the operating agency or agencies that ultimately received and expended the funds. Further, some of the information that was provided was inaccurate or incomplete. Frequently, in order to fill gaps in the information about specific expenditures or grants, BASPC was required to contact more than one agency (e.g., the State Department of Health and the Alameda County Health Care Services Agency) or to contact staff in different sections of the same government agency (e.g., accounting staff and program staff). Nevertheless, some gaps and inconsistencies in the data still could not be eliminated.

The figures on expenditures presented in this report do not necessarily represent funds actually expended by operating agencies during fiscal year 1974-75. BASPC determined that approximately 70 percent of the total dollars reported represent actual or estimated expenditures during the fiscal year. However, although the other 30 percent of the funds reported were obligated or budgeted for specific agencies or individuals in Alameda County, BASPC was not able to determine whether the funds actually were expended during the year. Most of those funds were obligated by HEW as direct payments to individuals and, therefore, were likely to have been expended.¹

Finally, it is important to note that there are substantial expenditures for human services in Alameda County, primarily in the voluntary sector, that are not identified in this report. Probably of greatest significance are the funds obtained from fees and through fund raising efforts by the several hundred United Way and independent voluntary agencies in Alameda County. In addition, agencies may have received considerable income from private foundations outside the Bay Area and outside the State. Time and cost constraints did not permit BASPC to examine these areas.

It is likely, too, that there are federal funds coming into the County that are not reported here. Some funds may come directly from Washington, D.C., and are not monitored by the Region IX federal office in San Francisco. Other funds may flow through non-governmental agencies located outside the Bay Area. For example, BASPC identified a Department of Labor grant of almost $500,000 which was awarded to an independent voluntary agency through the National Council for Senior Citizens, a private organization in Washington, D.C.

ORGANIZATION OF THE REPORT

The remainder of this report is presented in four parts. Section II is a summary of major findings developed in the study. Section III contains information about expenditures for human services in Alameda County by auspice of operating agency, by human services category, by geographic area, and by original funding source. Section IV shows expenditures by various combinations of the four variables described in Section III, and the paths through which the funds flow. The Appendices identify the operating agencies included in the study, and the federal grant programs and State grant programs under which funds for human services in Alameda County were allocated.

II. SUMMARY

The following are highlights of the information gathered by BASPC about expenditures for human services in Alameda County. The information is presented in greater detail in subsequent sections of this report.

- BASPC identified a total of $662,495,000 in expenditures for human services in Alameda County during fiscal year 1974-75. Almost all (98.9 percent) of the funds identified came from government sources; 71.7 percent of all funds came from federal sources.
- Payments to or on behalf of individuals accounted for 66.7 percent of all expenditures; 33.3 percent was expended by operating agencies.
- Of funds expended by operating agencies, 96.7 percent came from government sources, 2.1 percent from United Way, and 1.2 percent from other nongovernment sources.
- A total of 70.8 percent of all funds were expended for financial assistance and for health services; most of this amount (88.7 percent) was for payments to or on behalf of individuals.
- Of the $220,906,000 expended by operating agencies, 83.0 percent was expended by government operating agencies - 10.5 percent by federal and State agencies; 31 percent by County agencies; and 41.5 percent by local government agencies.
- Local government operating agencies expended 70.6 percent of all funds for three types of programs - programs for children and youth, education programs, and employment and training services. Financial and health services accounted for 48.4 percent of funds expended by County operating agencies; 68.9 percent of funds expended by State operating agencies were for employment and training services and for financial services; and 95.1 percent of funds expended by federal operating agencies were for health services.

- Expenditures by nongovernmental operating agencies accounted for $37,599,000, 17.0 percent of funds expended by operating agencies - $11,989,000, 5.4 percent, by United Way agencies; and $25,610,000, 11.6 percent, by independent agencies.
- A total of 82.0 percent of funds expended by United Way agencies were for seven programs: programs for children and youth; legal services, mental health services; recreation and special programs; services to older adults; services to the developmentally disabled; and multiple services. For independent operating agencies, 57.0 percent of total expenditures were for programs for children and youth, drug abuse services, health services and housing programs.
- Only 27.2 percent of all expenditures could be identified with a specific geographic area; the remainder (72.8 percent) was expended in two or more areas. However, 64.6 percent of all funds expended by operating agencies was identified with a specific geographic area.

III. ANALYSIS OF EXPENDITURES BY AGENCY AUSPICE, PROGRAM, SERVICE AREA AND ORIGINAL FUNDING SOURCE

During the study, BASPC identified a total of $662,495,000 in funds from government and voluntary sources that had been expended in fiscal year 1974-75 for human services in Alameda County. Operating agencies expended $220,906,000, 33.3 percent of the total; payments to (or on behalf of) individuals amounted to $441,589,000, 66.7 percent of the total. The information in this section analyzes these expenditures according to four major variables: the auspices of the operating agencies that expended the funds; the human services programs for which the funds were expended; the primary geographic service areas in which the funds were spent; and the original funding sources.

AUSPICE OF OPERATING AGENCY

Agencies identified as providers of direct services in Alameda County were classified according to the auspice under which they operate. Government agencies were grouped under four auspices - federal, State, County and local. Agencies included under local government auspice are city governments and special purpose government agencies (e.g., school districts and housing authorities) whose sphere of influence is less than countywide. Nongovernmental organizations include agencies affiliated with United Way of the Bay Area (UWBA) and independent agencies. Most of the independent agencies are voluntary nonprofit organizations.

Table 1 shows the total expenditure of funds by agencies under each of the six auspices. In some cases, a portion of the funds identified as having been spent by a specific operating agency may, in fact, have been passed on by that agency to other operating agencies for the provision of direct services. Therefore, some of the funds indicated under a given auspice in Table 1 (and in other tables in which expenditures are summarized by auspice) may actually have been expended by operating agencies under a different auspice. A list of the specific operating agencies included under each of the six auspices and the expenditure that was identified for each operating agency is presented in the Appendices.

HUMAN SERVICES PROGRAM

The term "program" refers to the category of human services with which specific expenditures are identified. The program categories conform to the "Revised Categories of Services and Definitions" being utilized by the County Human Services Council.¹ However five programs were added in order to accommodate expenditures that could not otherwise be classified readily. Those programs are: General Information and Referral; Hospital Construction; Management, Planning, Evaluation and Research; Multiple Services; and Public Facility Construction. Three categories used by the Human Services Council - Consumer Services, Environmental Improvement and Material Resources - were not included here.

A problem was encountered in the development of program definitions, that is, the assignment of specific services to each program. In the Human Services Council's classification scheme, similar services may appear under more than one category. For example, Health Services and Recreation and Special Programs are distinct categories; but under the category Children and Youth are listed "health services/medi-screen" and "recreation." This problem was resolved by arbitrarily assigning to a unique program each service for which expenditures were identified.

Table 2 briefly describes the 25 human services programs for which funds were expended in Alameda County in 1974-75 and indicates the total dollars expended for each program. Since it was often impossible to obtain complete information on how funds were used, the program descriptions should not be considered a comprehensive list of the services for which funds were expended. Two program categories - Financial Services and Health Services - accounted for 70.8 percent of all expenditures ($469,255,000). Another 21.5 percent of all funds ($142,094,000) was expended for services in six programs: Children and Youth (4.4 percent); Community Care (3.7 percent); Education (4.6 percent); Employment and Training Services (4.5 percent); Housing (2.2 percent); and Mental Health Services (2.0 percent). The balance of the funds ($51,040,000), 7.7 percent of the total, was expended in the other 17 program categories.

PRIMARY GEOGRAPHIC SERVICE AREA

To the extent possible, expenditures were identified according to the primary geographic service area and the place (usually city) in which services were provided or in which individuals receiving direct payments resided. For purposes of the study, Alameda County was divided into four primary geographic service areas, as follows:

North County: Alameda, Albany, Berkeley, Emeryville, Piedmont, Oakland

Eden: Castro Valley, Hayward, San Leandro, San Lorenzo

Tri-City: Fremont, Newark, Union City

Valley: Dublin, Livermore, Pleasanton, Sunol

It is important to note that the "area and place" classification may not adequately take into account the size of the geographic area from which an agency draws clients. For example, Fairmont Hospital, located in San Leandro, may serve a significant number of clients who live outside San Leandro or even outside the Eden service area.

A summary of expenditures by primary geographic service area and by place in which services are provided is presented in Table 3. However, the table does not provide an adequate representation of actual expenditures in the specific areas and places, since 72.8 percent of all funds were identified as having been expended in two or more areas of the County. Information on funds expended in specific areas is presented in greater detail in Section IV of this report.

ORIGINAL FUNDING SOURCES

BASPC attempted to trace all expenditures back to their original sources. Sources identified included four levels of government - federal, State, County and local (including cities and special purpose government) - and two principal voluntary sources - United Way of the Bay Area and private foundations.

A summary of expenditures by original source of funds is presented in Table 4. Funds from government sources accounted for 98.9 percent of the dollars expended for human services in Alameda County during fiscal year 1974-75; 71.7 percent came from federal sources, 17.3 percent originated at the State level, and 9.9 percent came from County and local sources. Four federal departments were the original sources of about 96 percent of the federal funds: Department of Health, Education and Welfare (60.5 percent); Department of Labor (24.3 percent); Department of Agriculture (5.7 percent); and Department of Housing and Urban Development (5.3 percent). At the State level, four departments were the original sources of 99 percent of the $114,327,000 expended in Alameda County: Department of Health (33 percent); Department of Benefit Payments (24 percent); Department of Education (21.1 percent); and Department of Employment Development (20.9 percent).

BASPC identified the specific grant program and/or statutory authority for $463,810,000 of federal funds, 97.7 percent of the total federal funds identified, and for $68,918,000 of State funds, 60.3 percent of the total State monies expended. A large amount of State funds are not identified under State grant programs or statutory authorities because a substantial portion of State funds are identified as matching funds under federal grant programs. Funds to match federal allocations, provided by State, County or local governments or by operating agencies, amounted to $95,682,000. Funds provided by County or local governments or by operating agencies to match State funds amounted to $3,048,000. Federal and State grant programs and/or statutory authorities under which allocations were identified are presented in the Appendices.

Of the $7,388,000 in voluntary funds expended in the County during the period, $4,679,000 (63.3 percent) came from United Way of the Bay Area; $1,785,000 (24.2 percent) came from foundations; other sources included private contributions and nongovernment funds provided by operating agencies.

IV. ANALYSIS OF EXPENDITURES BY COMBINATIONS OF VARIABLES

This section analyzes expenditures for human services in Alameda County in terms of various combinations of the four variables described in the previous section: auspice of operating agency; human service program; primary geographic service area; and original funding source. Also included is information on selected funding paths through which federal and State grants flow to operating agencies or individuals in Alameda County, and information on funds administered by selected government agencies.

ANALYSES BY PROGRAM

Expenditures for human services were analyzed by program in combination with the three other variables: auspice of operating agency; primary geographic service area; and original funding source. The results of these analyses are presented in Tables 5, 6 and 7.

A summary of expenditures by human service program and auspice of operating agency is presented in Table 5. The following are highlights of the data in Table 5.

1. Of the $68,530,000 spent by operating agencies under County auspice, 66.6 percent was used for services under four programs: Financial Services (26.8 percent) - expenditures representing costs for administration of financial assistance programs; Health Services (21.6 percent); Children and Youth (10.2 percent); and Mental Health Services (8.0 percent).

2. Over 90 percent of the expenditures by local government operating agencies were for five programs: Education (31.1 percent); Employment and Training Services (21.1 percent); Children and Youth (18.3 percent); Housing (10.4 percent); and Public Facility Construction (10.2 percent).
3. Of the $11,989,000 expended by operating agencies affiliated with United Way of the Bay Area, 82.0 percent was used to provide services under seven programs: Children and Youth (17.6 percent); Mental Health Services (15.5 percent); Recreation and Special Programs (13.4 percent); Multiple Services (9.9 percent); Services to Older Adults (8.8 percent); Legal Services (8.5 percent); and Services to the Developmentally Disabled (8.3 percent).
4. Expenditures by independent operating agencies accounted for 58.1 percent ($3,030,000) of all funds expended for Drug Abuse Services and for 44.8 percent ($1,538,000) of all funds expended for services to the Developmentally Disabled.
5. Payments to or on behalf of individuals accounted for 83.7 percent of funds expended for Community Care, 92.1 percent of funds for Financial Services and 83.3 percent of funds for Health Services.

Table 6 shows expenditures for human services according to program and primary geographic service area. For most programs, the data do not provide an adequate representation of actual expenditures in the four geographic areas, since almost three-fourths of all funds were identified as having been spent in two or more areas. However, there are nine programs in which at least 74 percent of the funds expended were identified with specific primary geographic service areas. These programs are: Alcoholism Services (100.0 percent); General Information and Referral (100.0 percent); Public Facility Construction (100.0 percent); Emergency Services (96.8 percent); Education (95.0 percent); Housing (91.2 percent); Hospital Construction (87.2 percent); Employment and Training Services (80.6 percent); and Children and Youth (74.0 percent).

Analysis of expenditures for human services by program and original source of funds is presented in Table 7. The data show the following:

1. Funds from federal sources accounted for at least 82 percent of the expenditures identified under the following programs: Public Facility Construction (100.0 percent); Housing (99.9 percent); Employment and Training Services (99.5 percent); General Information and Referral (98.8 percent); Legal Services (94.5 percent); Services to Older Adults (87.7 percent); and Volunteer Services (82.5 percent).
2. Grants from State sources accounted for at least half of all funds expended for two programs - Education (56.4 percent) and Mental Health Services (50.2 percent).
3. Funds from County and local government sources accounted for 9.9 percent of the funds identified in the study. At least 16 percent of the expenditures for the following programs consisted of County or local funds: Hospital Construction (65.7 percent); Criminal Justice (33.6 percent); Mental Health Services (18.1 percent); Alcoholism Services (17.8 percent); Multiple Services (17.3 percent); Children and Youth (16.6 percent); and Management, Planning, Evaluation, and Research (16.0 percent). Most of the County funds (77.5 percent) were expended for Financial Services and Health Services; 75.1 percent of local funds were for Children and Youth and Hospital Construction.

4. Of the $4,679,000 provided by United Way of the Bay Area, $3,308,000 (70.7 percent) was expended for services under three programs: Recreation and Special Programs (31.9 percent); Multiple Services (24.6 percent); and Mental Health Services (14.2 percent).
5. Of the $2,679,000 provided by private foundations and other voluntary sources, $2,679,000 (68.1 percent) was expended for four programs: Services to the Handicapped (25.8 percent); Health Services (25.6 percent); Mental Health Services (9.1 percent); and Education (7.6 percent).

ANALYSES BY AUSPICE OF OPERATING AGENCY

In addition to the analysis involving auspice and program, described above, expenditures for human services were analyzed by auspice of operating agency in combination with two other variables: original funding source and primary geographic service area. The results of these analyses are presented in Tables 8 and 9.

Table 8 shows expenditures in terms of operating agency auspice and original source of funds. The following are selected highlights from this table:

1. Funds from federal and State sources accounted for 62.5 percent of expenditures by County agencies, 53.8 percent of expenditures by United Way agencies, and 88.6 percent of expenditures by independent agencies.
2. Funds from federal and State sources accounted for 92.9 percent of payments to or on behalf of individuals.
3. Excluding funds paid to or on behalf of individuals, 96.2 percent of County government funds was expended by County operating agencies.
4. Of the $7,371,000 provided by local governments, $7,025,000 (95.3 percent) was expended by local government operating agencies.
5. Of the $2,709,000 from private foundations and other voluntary sources, $2,151,000 (79.4 percent) was expended by operating agencies under independent auspices.

Table 9 summarizes expenditures by auspice of operating agency and the area and place in which services were provided. As might be expected, all (100.0 percent) of the funds expended by local government agencies were spent in specific geographic areas and places. Expenditures by other operating agencies in specific geographic areas were: 81.3 percent of expenditures of independent agencies; 63.0 percent of expenditures of United Way agencies; and 30.4 percent of expenditures of County agencies.

Table 9 also show that:

1. A total of 64.6 percent of the funds expended by operating agencies was identified with a specific geographic area.
2. Of the $441,588,000 paid directly to individuals, only $37,480,000 (8.5 percent) was identified with specific geographic areas and places.
3. Of the $91,689,000 spent by local government operating agencies, $69,979,000 (76.3 percent) was expended in North County and $11,622,000 (12.7 percent) was expended in the Eden area.
4. Of the $7,552,000 spent by United Way agencies in specific primary geographic service areas, $7,251,000 (96.0 percent) was expended in North County.
5. Of the $20,640,000 spent by independent operating agencies in specific primary geographic service areas, $16,878,000 (81.8 percent) was used in North County and $2,201,000 (10.7 percent) was expended in the Eden area.

FUNDING PATHS

To the extent possible, funds identified in the study were traced from their original source to the operating agency which finally expended the funds for the provision of a human service. An analysis was made of funds from selected federal and State sources according to the path of the funds and the auspice of the operating agency identified as the final recipient of the funds. The results of this analysis are presented in Table 10. Definitions of the abbreviations of the agencies listed under "Funding Path" in Table 10 are as follows:

The federal dollars traced in Table 10 represent 97.8 percent of all federal funds identified in the study. State funds traced represent 54.1 percent of all State funds. The figures in Table 10 do not include monies provided by the State to match federal funds that pass through State agencies.

Funds often pass through (are administered by) various agencies at the State, County and local government levels before they reach the operating agency that uses the funds to provide a human service. Table 11 shows the amounts administered by, or which flow through, selected government agencies at those levels. The funds are presented according to the original sources. The dollar amounts listed under "Original Source of Funds" do not in all cases represent unique funds, because the same funds may be administered by different government agencies (usually agencies at different government levels). For example, some funds are administered by both the State Department of Benefit Payments and the County Social Services Department; other funds are administered by both the State Department of Health and the County Health Care Services Agency.

The primary source for information on Grant Program and Federal Catalog Number was the 1974 Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance. If information was not found in the 1974 Catalog, the 1975 Catalog was used.

Types of Assistance

The following list defines those types of assistance that are available for programs in the Catalog. Code letters below (A through P) will follow applicable program titles in the Agency Index:

- A Formula Grants—Allocations of money to states or their subdivisions in accordance with distribution formulas prescribed by law or administrative regulation, for activities of a continuing nature not confined to a specific project.
- B Project Grants—The funding, for fixed or known periods, of specific projects or the delivery of specific services or products without liability for damages for failure to perform. Project grants include fellowships, scholarships, research grants, training grants, traineeships, experimental and demonstration grants, evaluation grants, planning grants, technical assistance grants, survey grants, construction grants, and unsolicited contractual agreements.
- C Direct Payments for Specified Use—Financial assistance from the Federal Government provided directly to individuals, private firms, and other private institutions to encourage or subsidize a particular activity by conditioning the receipt of the assistance on a particular performance by the recipient. This does not include solicited contracts for the procurement of goods and services for the Federal Government.
- D Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use—Financial assistance from the Federal Government provided directly to beneficiaries who satisfy Federal eligibility requirements with no restrictions being imposed on the recipient as to how the money is spent. Included are payments under retirement, pension, and compensation programs.
- E Direct Loans—Financial assistance provided through the lending of Federal monies for a specific period of time, with a reasonable expectation of repayment. Such loans may or may not require the payment of interest.
- F Guaranteed/Insured Loans—Programs in which the Federal Government makes an arrangement to indemnify a lender against part or all of any defaults by those responsible for repayment of loans.
- G Insurance—Financial assistance provided to assure reimbursement for losses sustained under specified conditions. Coverage may be provided directly by the Federal Government or through private carriers and may or may not involve the payment of premiums.
- H Sale, Exchange, or Donation of Property and Goods—Programs which provide for the sale, exchange, or donation of Federal real property, personal property, commodities, and other goods including land, buildings, equipment, food, and drugs. This does not include the loan of, use of, or access to Federal facilities or property.
- I Use of Property, Facilities, and Equipment—Programs which provide for the loan of, use of, or access to Federal facilities or property wherein the federally owned facilities or property do not remain in the possession of the recipient of the assistance.
- J Provision of Specialized Services—Programs which provide Federal personnel to directly perform certain tasks for the benefit of communities or individuals. These services may be performed in conjunction with non-Federal personnel, but they involve more than consultation, advice, or counseling.
- K Advisory Services and Counseling—Programs which provide Federal specialists to consult, advise, or counsel communities or individuals including conferences, workshops, or personal contacts. This may involve the use of published information, but only in a secondary capacity.

- L Dissemination of Technical Information—Programs which provide for the publication and distribution of information or data of a specialized technical nature frequently through clearinghouses or libraries. This does not include conventional public information services designed for general public consumption.
- M Training—Programs which provide instructional activities conducted directly by a Federal agency for individuals not employed by the Federal Government.
- N Investigation of Complaints—Federal Administrative agency activities that are initiated in response to requests, either formal or informal, to examine or investigate claims of violations of Federal statutes, policy, or procedure. The origination of such claims must come from outside the Federal Government.
- O Federal Employment—Programs which reflect the Government-wide responsibilities of the Civil Service Commission in the recruitment and hiring of Federal civilian agency personnel.
- P Research Contracts—Federal assistance designed to support research in situations where the transmission of funds would be better handled through contracts rather than through grants. The research contract is for personal or professional services, or for any service to be rendered by a university, college, hospital, public agency, or non-profit research institution. The principal purpose of such contracts is to create, develop, or improve products, processes, or methods for public use, or to operate programs benefitting the public.
